LESSONS FROM THE EARLY CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 3:1-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.—I Corinthians 3:11.

Corinth in the time of Paul was a great city, as renowned for its commerce and culture as it was notorious for its vice and licentiousness. Here on his second missionary journey, Paul, with Silas and Timothy, spent 18 months winning many to Christ, in spite of the hostility of the Jews and the opposition of wicked men.

The church established in Corinth became the victim of a factional spirit which divided the loyalty of the people, hindering spiritual growth, destroying discipline, and resulting in low standards of life.

Paul found it necessary to write to the church regarding its difficulties, and we may well learn salutary lessons from his epistle.

I. A Lesson in Spirituality (vv. 1-4).

The further a man drifts from his place of spiritual power and usefulness, the more apt he is to try to keep up a "front," to take up any possible means of justification. The Corinthian church was divided into four groups, each one priding itself on being right. There was "a Pauline party, overzealous for the founder of the church; an Apollonian party, bewitched by the oratory of Apollos; a Petrine party, which, claiming Peter as authority, was bent on mixing Jewish ideas with Christianity; and a Christ party, which, in antagonizing other elements, became itself a faction" (Moore). (See I Cor. 1:11-13.) All this activity was covering up the fact that they were having.

1. Milk Instead of Meat (vv. 1, 2). In other words they were spiritual babes when they should have been grown-ups. Milk is a marvelous food, but there is need of stronger food for virile men and women.

How true it is that many ministers must spoon-feed or bottle-feed a lot of spiritual babes who should long since have grown up to the place where they can feed themselves and help others.

2. Strife Instead of Stability (vv. 3, 4). God does not want Christians to be like other men. When will we learn that lesson? One of the sure ways to stifle spiritual growth in a church or in an individual life is to engage in strife. Let us heed Paul's admonition and put away our bickerings, that we may become strong in the Lord.

II. A Lesson on Service (vv. 5-15).

Here is helpful instruction to the minister regarding his calling. Brethren, let us judge ourselves in the light of it lest we hinder God's work by having the wrong attitude or encourage our people to think carelessly on this important subject.

1. The Minister (vv. 5-8). There is no higher or holier calling than that to the ministry. We should not forget that, and will not, but will rather glorify the calling, when we realize that "minister" (v. 5) means "servant," "attendant," or "waiter." So Paul and Apollos, men of highest office and highest gifts, were God's waiters, to bring forth the bread of life; His servants, to plant and cultivate His field; and His builders, laboring on His building. Ministers are only instruments in God's hands, but they should be clean, well-prepared, and submissive instruments in His hands.

2. The Manner (v. 10). The servant of God must take heed how he builds. If, like Paul, he has the privilege of laying the foundation, he must be careful that it is the true foundation and is properly laid. He who builds must also be careful that every stone he lays is fitly placed and well-chosen.

3. The Materials (vv. 11, 12). How important it is that the materials of a building be right. If that be true of a physical building, it is a thousand times more important in God's building.

First of all there is only one foundation which the true minister can lay—Jesus Christ. It is the only foundation upon which anyone can build a lasting life structure for time and for eternity.

But there are other materials in the building which need to be chosen with care. It will not do for the minister to substitute the wood, hay, and stubble of his wisdom or the philosophy of men for the gold, silver, and precious stones of God's Word. Terrifying shame and loss is all that can result from such folly, for remember there is a day of judgment coming.

4. The Manifestation (vv. 13-15). Flaming fire will one day reveal how we have built. The "wood-hay-and-stubble" preacher or teacher of God's Word may himself be saved, but, oh, the tragedy of coming into God's presence after years of service like a man who has escaped from a burning building empty-handed; saved from the fire himself, but ashamed that he has so built as to suffer loss.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

BUSY FOLKS AND SLEEPY FOLKS

PETER RABBIT had about made up his mind that there was something very wrong with all the world, or, at least, with the friends and neighbors who lived in that part of it which he knew. Here it was the finest play weather of the whole year, and nobody but the Merry Little Breezes to play with! It seemed as if everybody else was either too busy or too sleepy to play. Of course it was all right for Striped Chipmunk and Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel to lay up stores of food for the winter if they wanted to, though for his part he couldn't see the sense of wasting these beautiful fall days in work. He would rather have a good time now and trust to luck to get enough to eat somewhere when he needed it in the winter.

"Chug-a-rum! I guess it's about time for me to turn in for the winter," said Grandfather Frog.

But how anybody could be sleepy these days when every breath of air made him want to jump up and kick his heels for very joy was more than Peter could understand. There was Johnny Chuck, so sleepy he could hardly keep his eyes open and actually talking of going to bed right now and staying there all winter! And there was Digger the Badger doing the same thing! Certainly there was something wrong with the world when people acted like that! There must be. He had it on the tip of his tongue to say so as he reached the bank of the Smiling Pool, but he didn't. He didn't because the very first person he saw was Grandfather Frog, and Grandfather Frog was yawning just as Johnny Chuck and Digger the Badger had yawned.

"Chug-a-rum! Oh, hum! Chug-a-rum! I guess it's about time for me to turn in for the winter," said Grandfather Frog, and yawned, stretched, yawned again, and then disappeared in the Smiling Pool. Peter waited and waited, but Grandfather Frog didn't appear again. Peter remembered how he had disappeared just that same way the year before, and now he, Peter, had seen nothing more of him until spring. A kind of sad feeling stole over him.

Just then he heard a splash, and looked up to see Jerry Muskrat swimming toward his house. Peter straightway brightened up. "Hello, Jerry!" he called. "Come on and play!"

But Jerry Muskrat answered never a word. He couldn't for he had his mouth filled with rushes which he was carrying to his house to repair the roof. Peter watched him climb up on the roof and cleverly fix the rushes in the place where they were most needed. Then, and not until then, did he reply to Peter.

"Too much to do, Peter! Too much to do! No time for play these days!" said he, and before Peter could say a word Jerry had dived head first into the Smiling Pool. Peter waited a little while and then followed the Laughing Brook up into the Green Forest. On the way he met Old Mr. Toad. Old Mr. Toad looked quite as sleepy as his cousin, Grandfather Frog. He was quite as sleepy as he looked, for he nodded drowsily at Peter and then yawned as he replied to Peter's question as to where he was going.

"To bed. To bed, Peter Rabbit, to bed! A sensible people go at this time of year. And if I don't get there pretty soon I shall fall asleep on the way." With that he turned his back squarely on Peter and started on.

Peter had more than half a mind to follow and see where Old Mr. Toad was going to make his bed, but finally decided that at the rate Mr. Toad was going it would take the rest of the day to get anywhere in particular. So Peter went up on the Smiling Brook until he came at last to the wonderful pond of Paddy the Beaver deep in the Green Forest. There was nothing sleepy about Paddy. My goodness, no! But like his cousin, Jerry Muskrat, he was too busy to talk. He was cutting logs of wood and sinking them in his pond in a great pile. In the winter he would eat the bark from them, for that is what he lives on.

So once more Peter went his way and not one bit less puzzled than before. It certainly was a funny world where everyone was either busy or sleepy.

Air Infantry Is New Army Unit

Debark Troops From Landed Transport Planes to Aid Parachute Men.

WASHINGTON.—An air infantry is to be developed by the army in addition to the parachute soldiers already under training, the war department announced.

A training circular embodies in detail the policies to govern the use of both the new air infantry and parachute troops. Both types of soldiers will as a rule be used in conjunction. The air infantrymen will embark from transport planes after these planes have landed.

The methods are largely adapted from the "vertical environment" employed by the German army in its recent invasions.

One of the first tests of the possibilities of a combination of parachute troops will be made soon in Georgia, it is understood. The assignment will be to seize control of a given area by surprising ground troops.

Equipment Described.

The equipment of the air infantrymen when they rush from the transport planes was described in the announcement as follows:

"Rifle, automatic rifle, pistol, submachine gun and grenade. Group weapons are the light and heavy machine guns, the Browning antiaircraft machine gun, caliber .50; the 37 mm. and caliber .50 antitank guns, the infantry mortars and demolition equipment. Other armament will depend upon the probable employment of the troops, and may include 75 mm. howitzers."

Successful use of air infantry, to an even greater extent than parachute troops, will depend on complete advance organization, including meticulously accurate weather reports, and command of the air over the area to be seized.

Sabotage of enemy communications and installations will be a feature of the air infantry; and in addition, its function will be to signal its own air force to indicate targets for bombing. It will destroy bridges, warehouses and other objectives in offensive operations and create confusion and disorder among hostile military and civilian personnel. It will conduct delaying operations against an advancing enemy.

The training circular points out that parachute and air-landing troops are extremely vulnerable to attack while in transit and particularly while landing. For this reason they must be strongly supported by combat aviation and when they move against a strong enemy their landing must be timed and coordinated to permit rapid support by advancing armored or other highly mobile ground troops.

To Carry Radio Sets.

"These troops must carry their own means of communication also," the announcement said. "They will have portable radio sets, aircraft signal panels and pyrotechnics. Whatever surplus cargo space remains in the air transport will be filled with supplies. The individual air soldier will carry one ration on his person. Other rations will be dropped as he lands.

"The importance of weather and terrain in air troop landings is stressed. Trained meteorologists should be available to make accurate weather forecasts for the longest practicable periods ahead.

"High winds, or releasing parachute troops too close to the ground because of difficulty in judging altitude accurately over broken terrain increases the hazard of parachute landings and may result in casualties and consequent loss of morale.

"The usefulness of these troops in defensive operations is also recognized, for they might be landed, equipped with demolitions, to harass or impede the enemy moving to attack.

"As for the training of these men, every practicable means for achieving realism is urged, together with continuous combined operations with combat aviation and armored and motorized units. Boldness and speed in execution is stressed."

Capital Hit by Spending Fever

Night Clubs Jammed and Noisy, Rooms Scarce, Movies Packed.

WASHINGTON.—This is the nation's boom town, where the dollar-a-year men come if they are good, where worry about the high cost of defense is mitigated by enjoyment of the high cost of champagne, where the spending fever has caught on with the poorest-paid government clerk.

It began with a gentle swell six months ago, and now it's a rip tide.

There is an increased housing shortage bordering on the acute stage, despite 14,000 new living units, hotels are filled, though the tourist season is weeks away; government office quarters are cramped; department stores are building additional floor space and warehouses, and each arriving train and plane adds to the congestion and the spending.

Night Clubs Packed.

Never before much of a city for night life, Washington's big night spots, the Trocks, is packed nightly. What corresponds to the night clubs of other cities, the "cafe lounges" of the big hotels, are doing a record business.

The big spending is done by hundreds of dollar-a-year men, lobbyists, the defense-contract seekers and members of corporation staffs here to wrestle with such problems as priorities. Prosperity in the form of hard cash has not even touched some of them yet, but, they are looking forward to it, and much of the gaiety is based on anticipation. So gloomy talk of profits taxes on war can dampen their spirits. In fact, there is little talk of war at the cafe tables.

Hearty livers crowd famous eating spots.

What with cover charges, the high cost of wine and a disposition to dine early and stay late, waiters are rejoicing in lavish tips.

This week-end was more boisterous than usual, largely because Saturday was one of the semi-monthly government paydays. Federal workers are paid on the fifteenth and the thirtieth of the month. On these days portions of their checks are consumed in money orders mailed home, installments on their auto loans and, nowadays, a spree.

Clerks Keep Step.

The civil service clerks, though they are no better off financially and rents are beginning to rise, are keeping step with the faster living pace. Film houses are packed and new theaters, some of them in palatial style, are being erected in the city and suburbs.

The department stores were crowded Saturday noon. Throngs of shoppers filled the streets. Retail trade in 1940 was $412,000,000, an 11 per cent increase over 1939, and it has been rising steadily since the turn of the year.

New businesses and new buildings are in the project. A new radio station was established recently and another will be ready soon. Two department stores have built additional floor space and a third has erected a new warehouse. A new hotel is to be ready next year, said to be the only large hotel to be built except in New York and Miami since depression times. It will alleviate the hotel room shortage caused in part by such practices as that which some government-contract corporations are following. They lease floors which are unoccupied most of the time so that their executives will be certain of living quarters on their periodic visits here.

Woman Shoots Ducks Over Limit—With a Camera

NEW ORLEANS. — Miss Lorene Squire of Harper, Kan., shoots more ducks than anyone else, perhaps—but she uses a camera instead of a gun.

Miss Squire went into the Delta migratory waterfowl refuge around the mouth of the Mississippi river to spend several weeks making "action shots" of wild ducks before they start back north to their summer homes.

Her expedition was just another in the journeys of thousands of miles Miss Squire has made in recent years to photograph animals. Ten years ago, she explained, she decided that her home state offered comparatively few waterfowl subjects for her camera because of harsh conditions there.

So she began in the Canadian Wilds, where she found plenty of subjects during the summer. She went through Saskatchewan, to the Mackenzie delta on the Arctic coast, the Athabaska delta, and on to Hudson's bay, Baffinland, Greenland and Ellsmere island.

Honor Accorded to Pike Is Questioned

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO. — Another old-time Colorado yarn has been questioned. W. Arthur Perkins, Colorado pioneer, insists that Zebulon Pike, for whom the famous peak was named, was not the first white man to see the bald top. French visitors saw the peak several years before Pike did in 1806, Perkins said.

SMITH—BROWN

Saturday afternoon, June 21st, at four-thirty, Miss Mary Avis Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawrence Brown, of Appomattox, became the bride of Eugene Carrol Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dabney Smith, of Clermont, Albamarle county. The wedding took place at Liberty Baptist church, in Appomattox, the officiating minister being a former pastor of the bride, the Rev. William Mayfield Thompson, now the pas or of the First Baptist church, Petersburg. The ring ceremony was used. The church was decorated with white gladiolus, Madonna lilies, palms and evergreens, the chancel being lighted with tall white tapers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, James William Carter, of Burkeville, was gowned in white satin, fashioned along princess lines with full train. Her veil of illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and her only ornament was a necklace of pearls, a gift from the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, gladioli and gypsophila.

Mrs. James William Carter, of Burkeville was her sister's matron of honor. She wore dusty pink chiffon with harmonizing halo hat and carried an arm bouquet of pastel gladioli. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Jest West Flood, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Ruth Virginia Arnold, of Richmond. They were gowned in pale aquamarine chiffon, with harmonizing halo hats, and carried arm bouquets of pastel gladioli.

The groom's brother, Onsel Smith of Charlottesville, was best man.

The groomsmen were Judge Jest West Flood, of Appomattox, John Hill, of Stuart's Draft, and Rufus E. Vincent, of Charlottesville. The minister and other male attendants were white suits.

Mrs. Robert S. Harris, of Pamplin, and instructor of music at the Conservatory in Farmville, was dressed in aquamarine sheer with a corsage of talisman roses. Preceding the ceremony she sang, 'I Love You Truly,' 'Beloved, It Is Morn,' and 'O, Perfect Love.' Mrs. John Hill, of Stuart's Draft, formerly Miss Virginia Lee Thompson, of Appomattox, rendered the following pipe organ selection, besides the usual wedding marches, 'To A Wild Rose,' 'Traumerei,' Intermezzo and Liebe'raum.'

The bride's mother, Mrs. William Lawrence Brown, wore powder blue lace and a corsage of pink rose buds.

The reception at the home of the bride's parents immediately followed the ceremony. The house was decorted with vari-colored summer flowers. Those who assisted in receiving were Mrs. Thelbert Trent, Miss Beulah Ferry II, Mrs. W. W. Burke and Miss Mary Lovlee Gills.

After a trip South, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home in Appomattox. Mrs. Smith's going-away costume was a white suit, with white accessories and a corsage of white flowers.

Important Notice to Farmers

Last year on July 28 and August 28, the tobacco growers of Appomattox county suffered heavy damage to their crops by hail storms.

Those who carried Hail insurance with us were paid in full according to the percentage of damage suffered on the amount of insurance carried.

Everyone was thoroughly satisfied with this adjustment. NOT ONE COMPLAINT.

For over TWENTY YEARS we have been furnishing this type of satisfactory insurance service to tobacco growers.

Won't you let us protect you also?

The cost is very reasonable and covers the whole season. You do not save a penny by waiting and you may lose. See us or drop us a card today.

"The Board of Directors of the Retail Merchants Association of Lynchburg recommend that stores close for this extra holiday."

Friday The Fourth Saturday The Fifth Sunday The Sixth
A Grand and Glorious Three Day Holiday for their Employees!

In these troubled days we are now going through, and faced by a future that cannot be foretold ... as we celebrate our Independence Day, which also celebrates the birth of the American Flag one hundred and sixty-five years ago, let us recall this .. "The Red, White and Blue" - "The Star Spangled Banner" - "The Stars and Stripes" - "OLD GLORY" - by whatever name it is called, all hail, "The American Flag" - OUR FLAG, .. Cherished by all our hearts - upheld by all our hands.

You too can take part in making this celebration a success by doing your shopping accordingly ... the cooperating stores will close at their usual time on Thursday afternoon, July 3rd. not to be reopened until Monday morning, July 7th.
